There were Smith, Vassar, Barnard and Bryn Mawr girls in the audience; there were Normal Collegeites, and athletic ladies from the Sargeant and Savage schools, and the evolutions of Miss Cayvan filled them with envy and admiration. Her clothes are not beautiful, but her clubs are. There are two things one Harvard Annex woman wants to know—how Miss Cayvan learned to swing the clubs and how Miss Bessie Tyree learned to smoke cigarettes so deliciously.

Daniel Frohman's Lyceum stock company for next season will consist of the following ladies and gentlemen: Georgia Cayvan, Katharine Florence, Bessie Tyree, Mrs. Walcot, Mrs. Whiffen, Maude Venner, Ida Aubrey, and Messrs. Herbert Kelcey, W. J. Le Moyne, Charles Walcot, Walter S. Hale, Fritz Williams, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Charles J. Bell, Robert Weed, Ernest Tarleton, David Elmer, Walter Buckland—the strongest organization the Lyceum Theatre has yet had.

This morning he arrived home just before loclock. His wife got up and welcomed him home. He told her that he was not disepp and felt inclined to read a while. This was not unusual, and Mrs. Steenburgh returned to her bed and immediately fell asleep.

She was soon awakened by a crash. Rushing into the kitchen in the rear of the flat, on the first floor, she saw that noor, she saw that noor of the windows was open. Hearing groans, she went to the window and saw her husband lying bruised and bleeding on the flagging of the back yard, about eighteen feet below.

She aroused Janitor Lutz, who summoned an ambulance, and the injured man was placed in bed. It was soon awakened by a crash. Rushing into the kitchen in the rear of the flat, on the first floor, she saw that injured a man devented by a crash. Rushing into the kitchen good deal has been about Miss Georgia Cayvan's Indian often kept busy until midnight.

Elvia Crox, the wife of Comedian Thomas Q. Seabrooke, probably owns more jewelry than any woman on the stage. She has now in her possession over $10,000 worth of diamonds, all of which have been given to her by her husband. . . .

The Madison Square Theatre will close its doors for the Summer to-morrow night, ending its second season under its present management. With the exception of the last few weeks, the entire season at the house has been filled with Mr. Hoyt's own attractions, "A Temperance Town" and a revival of the famous "A Trip to Chinatown," "Rival Candidates," Rose Coghlan and Minnie Seligman are the combinations which have appeared, and this list might further be supplemented by a number of meritorious attractions which have appeared, and the first half of July. Messrs, Hoyt & McKee have decided to close, however, in order that they might have plenty of time in which to make all the contemplated alterations in the theatre. When the Madison Square reopens for next season its interior will hardly be recognized. The changes proposed include not alone merely the decorative features, but structural ones as well. The new season will be inaugurated with the first New York performance of Hoyt's "A Milk-White Flag."

"On the Bowery," of which Steve Brodie will be the star feature, will be seen for the first time on any stage at the National Theatre, in Philadelphia, Aug. 11. It will be presented at the Boston Theatre also before beginning its New York career. The production is to be very elaborate in a scenic way. One of the conspicuous features will be a representation of the Brooklyn Bridge more like the real bridge than any that has heretofore been attempted on the stage.

Barstano Was Caught Between a Cable Car and a Beer Truck.

Michael Barstano is in Chambers Street

received this morning between a cable car and a truck.

Barstano ran across the track in front of 175 Broadway just as car No. 101 and met each other. Before he knew it he was jammed between the two, and it seemed that he must be crushed to death.

There was much excitement over the man's predicament, and when he was extricated it was thought he had received serious internal injuries.
